The
PHI BETA KAPPA
Society

Founded December 5, 1776

The Phi Beta Kappa key is one of this nation's most distinctive symbols and, in fact, traces its origins to the era of the American Revolution. Conceived in 1776 by a group of talented undergraduates at the College of William and Mary as an emblem of their secret "philosophical society," the key proclaims Phi Beta Kappa's centuries-old conviction that "The love of wisdom (is) the guide of Life." As the Society they created encompassed more of the nation's finest colleges and universities, its key became a universally recognized mark of academic achievement in the liberal arts and sciences. So it remains to this day, whether it is worn by a president, a Supreme Court justice, a college professor or an entrepreneur, the key's venerable pointing finger proclaims for all to see the wearer's commitment to Phi Beta Kappa's ancient principles (represented in the three stars)—friendship, morality, and learning.

Phi Beta Kappa keys are made to the standards specified by the Society and are available in three different sizes. Each is available in either 10 karat solid gold or 24 karat gold electroplate. Each of the three key sizes is available as a key pin. The key pin has a finding permanently attached to the back of the key. The bar pin is also available which is engraved with the member's chapter. Bar pin/key combinations are made in two sizes. Keys are sold without chains, which are available separately. Each key is engraved with the member's name, chapter, and calendar year of election. For the member's name, a maximum of 16 letters and spaces can be engraved. Chapter names are engraved in accordance with instructions on file at the Society.
